► DOES THIS APPLY TO ME??

- ✓ This guidance applies if you began your course before September 2015. If you started in September 2015 or later, please see the separate guide.
- ✓ This guidance applies to all taught PG courses except PGCE.

How do Resits differ from Retakes with Attendance?

Resits

- redeem fails on individual assessments [eg an exam or an essay];
- CAPPED mark for each individual resat assessment;
- resits can raise the aggregate module mark to 40;
- for dissertations: submit an improved version of the failed dissertation;
- free of charge.

Retakes with Attendance

- take the entire module again, with full attendance, including submitting all assessments;
- no module can be retaken more than once;
- if a retake is failed on an aggregate mark of 25-39, resits may be possible;
- normally, marks are uncapped [but NOT if you had originally failed due to non-submission or academic misconduct];
- for dissertations: undertake a new dissertation;
- free of charge.

What are the Rules for Taught Modules?

Your opportunities will depend on:

- your aggregate mark for the module &
 - whether the assessment was a Qualifying Component.
- ☺ If your aggregate mark is 40+, your fail will probably be condoned
☹ [Unless you got less than 35 for the failed assessment, or it was a Qualifying Component.]
- ☹ If your aggregate mark is 0-24, you will normally be required to retake the entire module with attendance, usually in the next academic year
☹ [Normally, you can only retake a module once.]
- ☺ If your aggregate mark is 25-39, you may be able to resit the failed assessment[s], usually in the summer Resit Period.

What are the Rules for Dissertations?

Your opportunities will depend upon:

- your mark for the dissertation.
- ☹ If your mark is 0-24, you will normally be required to retake the full dissertation, with attendance, usually in the next academic year.
- ☹ [Normally, you can only retake a dissertation once.]
- 😊 If your mark is 25-39, you may be able to resubmit the dissertation, within a few months.
