You will explore Sustainability in Marketing, including ethical practices, the circular economy, and customer expectations.

COURSE STRUCTURE

Teaching combines lectures, seminars, and tutorials. Lectures give a wide view of digital marketing. Seminars and tutorials focus on applying what you learn. They involve discussions, individual tasks, and group activities. These sessions also develop employability skills.

Combined honours Marketing students have around 6 teaching hours per week in the first year, reducing to 5 hours in later years. Independent study involves about 15 hours each week. This includes research, reading, guest lectures, industry events, exam revision, assessment prep, and group work.

ASSESSMENT AND FEEDBACK

You will have a number of assessments throughout your studies, including marketing campaign pitches, the production of digital marketing content and collateral, reports, individual academic assignments, multiple choice tests, group presentations and written exams.

Written feedback on coursework will be provided within four working weeks of submission. If you wish to receive feedback on your written exams, you can request this from your tutors once results are released. You are also encouraged to arrange a meeting with your tutor to discuss your feedback in person.
